The Lir, National Academy of Dramatic Art at Trinity College Dublin.

Next week, The Lir will be presenting a number of information sessions about undergraduate degree programmes. Being a conservatoire means small classes and expert instruction from industry leaders in each chosen discipline. Students merge ready to work and they have an established reputation for excellence.

Application to the degree programmes is by interview or audition and no CAO/UCAS or similar points system are required. To register for these sessions, please email marketing@thelir.ie.

Stage Management & Technical Theatre

If you are good with your hands, are technical, creative, solution focused or an organiser, this could be the course for them. The student body is made up of a range of people who like to work on very focused tasks or who like supporting and leading teams. The key shared interest is making exciting projects happen and having a significant part to play in doing so.

Join the Director of Technical Training, Eve D'Alton, on either Monday, December 9th at 6pm (GMT) or Tuesday, December 10th at 10am (GMT) for an online presentation and Q&A on our Stage Management & Technical Theatre programme. See more on the course here.

Acting

Join the Director of Actor Training, Gavin O'Donoghue on Wednesday, December 11th for an online presentation and Q&A on acting programmes. You can choose to join at 10am or 6pm (GMT). See more on the course here.

University of Strathclyde - Performance Sport Scholarships Virtual Information Session – Wednesday 11th December at 6pm
