Introducing University of Glasgow's new UG Liberal Arts Programme

University of Glasgow will be offering MA Liberal Arts in 2026. Designed for students with wide-ranging curiosity, this programme offers a flexible, and interdisciplinary path through the arts and humanities.

Liberal Arts is interdisciplinary. It encourages students to experiment with methodologies and insights from different subjects, and to think across disciplinary boundaries. Liberal Arts at Glasgow engages contemporary questions of global concern and social responsibility. With core courses on themes such as the environment, migration, social justice, intercultural awareness and wellbeing, it offers an authentically twenty-first century approach to the arts and humanities.

A distinctive feature of this degree is the opportunity to specialise in areas of personal interest through secondary subject pathways, including Comparative Literature, Film & Television Studies, English Literature, History, Philosophy, and Theatre Studies. As a result, students will graduate with an MA in Liberal Arts 'with' a chosen pathway, for example, MA Liberal Arts with Comparative Literature. For this reason, each pathway has its own unique UCAS code. You can find further information on this on the subject webpage:

<https://www.gla.ac.uk/undergraduate/degrees/liberal-arts/#tab=degrees>

Open day is on Saturday 18th October!
